Sv. Ivan Lighthouse Rovinj, Croatia

A private island getaway is the stuff of dreams, right? Well, if that island is Sv. Ivan's, a speck of land surrounded by razor-sharp rocks with just a lonely old lighthouse for shelter, you may think it's more like a dream you just can't wake up from. You'll have to stock up on supplies before navigating the choppy Adriatic to get on or off of it, but as the sun sets towards the horizon, you're marooned. Vicious winds make passage too difficult in the evenings. Did we mention that a Venetian doge met his end on the island's cliffs?
