Europe's largest river cruise line, CroisiEurope, introduces Family Club cruises, which allow children under 16 years old to sail for free on select cruises. The Family Club cruises include a second cabin so families can stay together onboard.

In addition to meals, unlimited beverages and excursions, the program allows children to enjoy water games, activities and perform on each cruise's closing show. The cruise offering is available on four of CroisiEurope's most popular itineraries, including Croatia and Montenegro; the Douro Valley and Salamanca; Andalusia; and Venice.

Travelers heading to Croatia and Montenegro on the eight-day cruises, from $2,523 per person, will receive 30 percent off for children up to 16 years of age; while six-day journeys to Portugal and Spain, from $1,421 per person, will allow children up to 16 years of age to sail for free.

Tourists interested in traveling to Andalusia will be able to enjoy traditions, gastronomy and flamenco with their children, as they sail for free, with prices starting at $1,085 per person for eight-day cruises.

Venice also offers free cruises to children, featuring six-day cultural cruises from $1,429 per person with stops in Venice, the Lagoon islands of Burano and Murano, Padua, Ferrara and Verona.
