

THE SUN

Igloo with a view

Viewing the Northern Lights is a never-to-be-forgotten experience. Often the best viewing is during winter and in far northern locations, making for a heartwarming but bone-chilling experience. The folks in Finland's Lapland region try to make it more cozy with their increasingly popular glass igloo resorts. These dwellings can be found in the vicinity of the Arctic Circle and consist of individual units with glass roofs that give panoramic views of the sky. Amenities may be as basic as a bed and small toilet area or as luxurious as full baths, kitchenettes and private saunas. At least 21 of these resorts offer glass igloos, with prices as low as about $175 a night up to about $815. Finnair has flights to Helsinki from Chicago, Miami, New York and San Francisco. Find lots of information on glass igloos and other things to do in Lapland at tinyurl.com/yazyjhmo.

Phil Marty is a freelancer.