Perillo Tours Offers 10-Day Food and Wine Tour to Italy

July 12, 2012 10:38 PM

This autumn, Perillo Tours will celebrate Italy's rich culinary reputation with Mangia e Bevi, a new, 10-day food and wine tour that combines the exploration of regional Italian cuisines with visits to UNESCO World Heritage attractions.

The program visits Rome, Siena and Bologna as well as Chianti, San Gimignano, Florence, Parma and Modena. Pricing for Mangia e Bevi between Oct. 11 and Feb. 14 starts from $2,490 per person, double, and includes first-class accommodations, airport transfers, most meals, wine tastings and more.

In Rome, the tour visits Vatican City and features dining at trattorias in Trastevere, a historical quarter known for its narrow cobblestone streets and its nightlife. The Villa D'Este waits in nearby Tivoli with its splendid gardens, now a UNESCO World Heritage Site, standing as testament to the beauty of the Italian Renaissance. Moving north through Siena, travelers will take in the Chianti region and the region of Emilia Romagna and more.

Group tours range from 20 to 40 people, using the latest deluxe motorcoaches with extra legroom. Perillo Tours also offers its guests the option to extend their stay by arriving early or departing late. The tours have been crafted to balance abundant activity with plenty of free time. The prices include all costs aside from gratuity for the guides and international airfare, including arrival and departure airport transfers in Italy; centrally located first class hotel accommodations; a daily buffet breakfast, five dinners, and two lunches; a wine tasting and vineyard tour; professional tour directors and licensed local guides; wireless headsets for hearing the guides clearly in public places; hotel taxes, hotel service charges and all tips for hotel and restaurant personnel; baggage handling (except at airport); and one tote bag per person, baggage tags and travel documents.
