Perillo tours the latest in faith-based travel options

By Felicity Long

The faith-based travel market appears to be alive and kicking

In fact, at last count about 40% of the members of the National Tour Association are involved in the faith-based travel market in some capacity.

The latest entry into the market is Perillo Tours' series of Journeys of Faith programs to Italy, Spain, Portugal and France, Greece and Turkey, as well as the Holy Land and Jordan.

The customized faith-based tours were designed to appeal to individuals as well as church groups and other religious organizations.

To help agents get acquainted with the new product, the company released a brochure that includes sample itineraries, which can be organized for a minimum of 15 participants.

Rates vary by length and trip components, but an eight-night Italian Jubilation package, for example, would start at about $1,850 per person, land only. Other itineraries could include eight nights visiting Marian shrines in Portugal, Spain and France, from about $1,780, and eight nights following the journey of St. Paul through Greece and Turkey, from $2,610.

Tours typically include accommodations, motorcoach transportation, daily buffet breakfast and most dinners and admission to religious sites. Other features can include daily mass, and group rates are available from all gateway cities.
