Add Bermuda to the list of destinations you can reach on a Disney cruise.

Disney Cruise Line on Thursday announced it would offer its first sailings to the island getaway in late 2018 out of New York.

The five- and six-night trips will take place on the 1,754-passenger Disney Magic and feature two to three days in Bermuda.

Disney on Thursday also announced plans for its first cruises to Quebec City, Canada. The company said it would offer two seven-night voyages between New York and Quebec City in September 2018 that also will take place on Disney Magic.

The Quebec City trips will include stops at the Canadian ports of Saguenay and Baie-Comeau — both firsts for Disney.

In addition, Disney Magic in late 2018 will operate three seven-night sailings from New York to Port Canaveral, Fla., for a visit to nearby Walt Disney World. Passengers on the voyages will receive one-day Park Hopper tickets that allow entry into all of the resort's theme parks and round-trip transportation between the ship and the parks. The trips also will include a stop at Castaway Cay, Disney's private island in The Bahamas.

Bookings for the trips open to the public on May 18.
