

Home > Inspiration > Where to Go Next > Where to Go in Fall

11 Fall Foliage Train Rides to Book Right Now

By Lyndsey Matthews 7.24.2018

Courtesy of Shutterstock

Take New Hampshire's Conway Scenic Railway through the Crawford Notch pass in the White Mountains this fall.

This September and October, take in beautiful fall colors from the Adirondacks to the Alps on these scenic train excursions around the world.

It's never too early to start planning your fall getaways. But instead of going on the same fall foliage drive you do every year, consider ditching the car to take in the changing scenery from the comfort of a train. Here are 11 of our favorite scenic train rides that depart this September and October throughout the United States and beyond.

Amtrak Adirondack

Route: New York City to Montreal, Canada

Departing New York's Penn Station in the morning, you'll spend the next 10 hours winding through the Hudson Valley and up into its namesake Adirondack Mountains before traveling along the shores of Lake Champlain and arriving in Montreal in the evening. From September 27 and November 2, 2018, Amtrak's vintage Great Dome Car will be attached to the Adirondack in Albany to give riders even better views of upstate New York's fall foliage. From $69 one way

