This 10-day VIP experience gives travelers an inside look at Italy's icons of haute couture, fine jewelry, and perfume.

Scoring a seat at a premiere fashion show is a major feat. In the world's fashion capitals—New York, London, Paris, and Milan—spots are typically saved for influential celebrities and industry moguls, and luxury collections are viewed (and later worn) by a select few. But not anymore.

Luxury travel specialists Zicasso have introduced an exclusive 10-day “Italy in Vogue” tour that takes travelers from Milan to Tuscany (including Florence) and Rome on an unparalleled adventure through the iconic world of Italian fashion.

Highlights of the handcrafted trip include an in-depth look at design collections in the Italian Institute of Fashion, the Armani Silos, and Fondazione Prada; one-on-one time with a personal shopper in Milan's world-class fashion district; a private fashion show at the Salvatore Ferragamo boutique and museum (over Negronis and aperitifs, no less), and insider access to some of Italy's most prominent design institutions, including the Fendi, Bulgari, and Ferragamo flagships.

What's more: Zicasso can arrange exclusive entry to premiere fashion shows during 2018 Milan Fashion Week. (The fall/winter show happens February 21-27; the spring/summer show occurs September 19-25.)
