

GALAVANTING

« Mt. Everest being remeasured - 542 | Main | Refund lost luggage fees, says Schumer - 540 »

Finnair flies its first biofuel flight - 541

Thursday, July 21, 2011 at 9:00AM

Finnair's begins flying biofuel planes. Photo by Joi

Now, some of you may be familiar with cars running on biofuel. You know, the fuel made from renewable, organic raw material? Basically, it's a fuel often associated with recycled cooking oil in restaurants. Well, Finnair is using it to fuel its planes.

That's right, cooking oil. In partnership with Dutch company SkyNRG, Finnair seeks to use biofuels and other alternative energies as a way to reduce energy emissions. The flight, which took place Wednesday, July 20 from Amsterdam to Helsinki, is one such step the company is making in pursuit of "a sustainable future for aviation through actively developing a sustainable production chain for alternative aviation fuels," according to a release.

"Biofuel use is still not financially sustainable, because biofuel is more expensive than ordinary aviation fuel and no large-scale production or distribution has yet been established. Finnair, moreover, does not receive any kind of financial support to use biofuel, unlike some other airlines," says Finnair's Vice President Sustainable Development Kati Ihamäki.

According to the release, Finnair's first flights utilize SkyNRG biofuel manufactured from recycled cooking oil, which are mixed half-and-half with ordinary aviation fuel. SkyNRG's fuel fulfills all quality and safety requirements for jet fuel, and is actually certified in the same class as ordinary aviation fuel. Finnair's flight AY846 flown on an Airbus A319.

Finnair is not the only European airline flying biofuel flights. Earlier this month, German airline Lufthansa kicked off a six-month biofuel trial for all scheduled flights between Hamburg and Frankfurt, Germany.

Share Article | Email Article | Print Article
 by Joseph Hernandez tagged Finnair, SkyNRG, biofuel, sustainable in Socially Conscious Travel >>
 0 Comments and 0 Reactions

ONLINE TRAVEL MAGAZINE

When it comes to travel, we believe people are interested in more than just the latest gear and reviews of ludicrously expensive resorts. We know that not every female is in search of the world's perfect facial. And that people without trust funds travel too.

See our contributing writers >>

Google Translate
 Select Language
 + Google Gadgets powered by Google

ON THE WORLDWIDE BLOG

Take me out to the ball game

A Rainy Day in Roatan

A Taco Ride - Your Hometown

TRAVEL NEWS

July 21 - Joseph Hernandez
 Mt. Everest being remeasured - 542

July 21 - Joseph Hernandez
 Take me out to the ball game

July 21 - Joseph Hernandez
 Finnair flies its first biofuel flight -

SEARCH

Keep up with Galavanting by RSS, email, facebook & twitter.

Find us on Facebook

29,244 people like Galavanting.

Facebook social plugin

Enter your email address:

 Subscribe
 Delivered by FeedBurner

Tell your friends about Galavanting

GALAVANTINGTV indie travel tv central >>

Recent Galavanting TV Episodes

