The gulf between first class and coach may be bigger than ever, but it never hurts to peek behind the curtain and see what the one percent is up to before they board their flights.

Besides, whether you're spending hard-earned dollars or miles, there's a wide range of difference between a standard airport lounge and the best in the world. Here are the top 10 airline lounge amenities that our Fortnighter team indulges in when traveling the globe researching our trips.

Of course Finnair's sleek two-year-old lounge in Helsinki has a sauna -- don't worry, you don't have to jump into an icy lake afterwards before your flight -- along with a "stone bath" as part of the facilities. There's also a wine cellar, a bar with cognac and, in the spa, swimsuits available to rent.
