

Font size: A AA AAA

Finnair Flies Its First Biofuel Flight From Amsterdam to Helsinki

July 20, 2011
By: Michele Herrmann

SHARE f t in +MORE Be the first of your friends to like this.

Today, July 20, Finnair scheduled the take-off of its first biofuel flight, AY846, from Amsterdam to Helsinki. The flight was to be operated with an Airbus A319 aircraft, departing from Amsterdam at 6:50 p.m. local time and arriving in Helsinki at 10:10 p.m.

In the next few weeks, Finnair will fly a series of four flights using biofuel in both engines of its aircraft. The airline's measure follows a recent measure by Lufthansa. Also in July, Lufthansa unveiled a six-month biofuel trial on its regular scheduled flights flying between Hamburg and Frankfurt, Germany.

According to a press announcement, Finnair emphasized the importance of finding a fuel solution that is ecologically, financially, and socially sustainable.

"Biofuel use is still not financially sustainable because biofuel is more expensive than ordinary aviation fuel and no large-scale production or distribution has yet been established," said Kati Ihamäki, Finnair's vice president, sustainable development.

For its first biofuel flights, Finnair is using SkyNRG biofuel manufactured from recycled biomass in both engines of its aircraft. The fuel mixture used is half biofuel and half ordinary aviation fuel and is certified in the same class as ordinary aviation fuel.

The biofuel supplied by SkyNRG, a Dutch company, is made from cooking oil recycled from restaurants.

Visit www.finnair.com

Everyone Friends Me

Recent user activity on www.travelagentcentral.com:

Carolyn Cummins : MSC Cruises Offers Baseball Greats Theme Cruises "MSC Cruises is host..."

less than an hour ago

William Lyons : MSC Cruises Offers Baseball Greats Theme Cruises "MSC Cruises is host..."

an hour ago

omckelligan : The Tides Riviera Maya to Add 11 Luxury Villas and More "The Tides Ri..."

3 hours ago

Joyce Sisler : Aqua Opans Mau Moikiki Hotel

Las Vegas at your Fingertips!

Harrah's

Caesars Palace

Flamingo

Golden Nugget

Flamingo Las Vegas

CaesarsTravelAgents.com