

TravelLife Editor's Blog

Thursday, May 12, 2011

Finnair connects Toronto & Singapore

Just got word from my friends at Finnair that they're launching a flight to Singapore via Helsinki from Toronto.

That means you can visit two great parts of the world on one trip. Price of the round trip ticket from Toronto: $1,069 return!

That's an amazing price and one that will be hard to pass up.

I just got back from Singapore and I can tell you there's so much to see and do in Asia's loveliest city - and I strongly suggest you stay at the St. Regis Hotel; one of the best in the city. I've never been to Helsinki but from what I hear, it's one of Europe's best places to visit.

Finnair will be flying out of Toronto five days a week from May 26 to Sept. 11, 2011.

Finnair, which operates one of the youngest fleets in Europe, is the only airline offering a daily connection between Singapore and Northern Europe. Helsinki's compact terminal is designed especially for transfer traffic so making your connecting flight from Toronto to Singapore won't be a problem.

Finnair offers a comprehensive route network via Helsinki to over 50 destinations in Europe and 10 cities in Asia.

For more information, go to www.finnair.com

---

Posted by Marc Atchison at 3:04 PM 0 comments

Labels: SingaporeFinnair cheap flightsToronto