Finnair Flight Attendants Publish a Collection of True Stories from the Sky Called "Airborne: Tales from A Thousand And One Flights"

New York, NY, October 5, 2012 – Today, Finnair's cabin crew has published Airborne: Tales From A Thousand And One Flights, a collection of unusual or humorous stories from their travels around the world. Drawing on contemporary anecdotes as well as on decades of flight attendant history and lore, Airborne is a collection of true stories written by customer service professionals of the sky.

Independently and on their own spare time, cabin crew members Riitta Kiiveri, Noora Kunttu, Pirkko Saari, Christina Strandberg, Meriitta Ahtikari, Kati Kaivanto, Lene Malmström and Tony Pokkinen have written or collected stories from their colleagues for publication in Airborne.

"There are innumerable stories about flying, and as it has become an increasingly popular mode of transportation, reaching further and farther into all corners of the world, these stories have become increasingly vivid," writes cabin crew member Riitta Kiiveri in the book's foreword. "To the reader, we would like to wish a pleasant journey with us to the far edge of the world and back."

Airborne, published by Atar, is also available in Finnish as Taivas mikä työpaikka! The profits from the book will be donated to the Finnish Central Association for Mental Health, to be used in the prevention of mental health issues among children and adolescents.
